Hello!

I imagine that we family history sleuths are very much aware of the value of our family stories. They provide us with a unique snapshot of how we came to be who we are. At times they explain some of our likes, (and dislikes), our traditions and perhaps even our behaviours.

At our branch meetings I have often felt privileged to be able to hear some of the wonderful stories that our members have cleverly cobbled together from this fact, and that picture, and snippets of family memory.

But what if all you have is a photo?

While living in England recently, I was privileged to meet and get to know Carol Cooper and her husband Ron. Carol was just a baby of a few months old in 1941 when her father was sent to war.

He never returned. He was one of over 50,000 British men who were captured by the Japanese at the fall of Singapore in February 1942. He died during the construction of the infamous Burma Railway. My father, captured at the tender age of 21, survived.

Carol and Ron are very much in my thoughts, as, sadly, Ron passed away in July, but also because these two people believed it was important to tell the story of those men, who were held in the most inhumane of conditions for 3 and half years until their liberation on 15 August 1945.

They started an organisation called COFEPOW, Children of Far East Prisoners of War which now has over 2,000 members. They, and their supporters, built a living memorial to these men; an education centre located at the National Memorial Arboretum in Staffordshire, England.

The 15th August 2015 will be the 70th anniversary of VJ Day. To mark the occasion, COFEPOW have issued a commemorative medallion which I shall proudly add to my father's war medals. Lest we forget.

If you would like to learn more about COFEPOW the web address is cofepow.org.uk

Archives NZ visit

A group of 19 members joined in another interesting tour of Archives NZ in Wellington on July 2nd.

If you are looking for land information in the Lower North Island, you will find it in the Stack Area. You can ask for assistance to work out the complicated system used! Records are available from 1850 – 1920's. In the 1920's certificates of title were issued, so records after that date can be found at Land Information Department.

There are no records for Hawkes Bay as they were destroyed in the earthquake. The remaining areas are sourced in the Auckland, Christchurch or Dunedin Archives.

Other resources mentioned were Coroners Reports (usually a 100 year restriction on these, but you can apply to the courts for permission to view), War Diaries, Intention to Marry Registers, some Police files (pre 1914), Army department files including WWI, WW2, Korea and Malaya.

We were reminded of the Remote Service that Archives NZ offers.

If you are unable to get to Archives personally, you can order records on line. You need to know what you are looking for as they do not do research for you. The prices went up on July 1st and are listed on the Archives website.

Who was holding the baby?

It began with a photo, taken in 1945 of a serviceman holding a baby. That baby was my sister, who is now 70 years old. My mother was coming out from England to New Zealand as a 'war bride' to start a new life with her NZ soldier husband (my father).

The photo was published in The Freelance, a newspaper of that time and the serviceman was named as Eric Connor from Wairoa. My sister and I decided that we would like to locate the family of the serviceman and give them a copy of this photo, if they didn't have one. Our attempts at getting information drew a blank, so Colonel Ray Seymour offered to help.

In November 2014 I wrote an article for our branch newsletter about the steps that Col. Ray Seymour took to identify this serviceman in a photo taken 70 years earlier. Within 24 hours of taking on the task he had not only identified the serviceman, but also had located his daughter. It turns out that the serviceman's name was incorrect. I made contact with his daughter and found she had a similar photo, but hers had my mother in it. So we exchanged photos.

Last month, a woman contacted our branch secretary, saying she had been searching the internet looking for information about her grandfather. Google brought up our branch newsletter. The man in our photos was her grandfather. Her family situation meant she had lost touch with her family and had no photos of her grandfather who had died when she was about 11 years old. How exciting it was for her to have two photos of her grandfather!

So you never know when you publish something online, be it a family tree or a story of some kind, what impact that may have on someone's life.

My Dad was made of granite – or so I thought

Anna Hayes – aged 85 years (Contributed by Kay Carter, Anna Hayes' sister-in-law)

It's Father's Day on Sunday. Dads of old were made of granite. Today's fathers are pussycats. When I see my grandchildren rushing out to greet their dad when they see his car arriving, the four-year-old grabs one leg, the three-year-old grabs the other and a third one ends up on his shoulders.

A lot of old-styled fathers were remote from their families. My own father definitely appeared to be made of granite. I never saw him smile. He never cracked a joke or gave a hug. He was very critical.

There were seven in our family. Growing up in Skreen, County Sligo. My father had his problems, being flogged unconscious by a sadistic teachers in a west Cork national school didn't help. He was carried home on a shutter taken from a window (that teachers would be jailed today). He was also a Collins man in the civil war and there hangs another terrible tale.

My mother was an angel, she often sang Danny Boy, which we all loved. She loved the simple things of life, especially nature, and a good novel. Time rolled on, as it does, and she died in 1960 from severe arthritis.

A few years later we were all celebrating something or other, one of the guests got up to sing, and the song was Danny Boy. We all loved it. She had to stop halfway through when we all saw tears streaming down my father's face.

He wasn't made of granite after all.

APFHC News

Help instructions for the above program are now on our website under Membership > Members only.

Help Sessions

Bev is always glad to hear from anyone able to volunteer their services to help. Thanks to those of you who have offered to help. More volunteers are always welcome and appreciated by members needing assistance.

Relocation at the library

The APFHC has now been relocated on the ground floor of the Paraparaumu library.

The desk layout does not allow as much space for notes etc. so have your research well organised to make the most of your time.

The key to access our cabinet can be obtained from the library issues desk as the information desk is no longer attended.

Pease remember that any matters relating to the Genealogy Society should be taken up with a committee member, not library staff.

Orientation Session.

This successful session on Thursday 16th was attended by 20 people to learn about using census records was held upstairs in the new education centre.

The Kapiti Genealogy Menu

Remember that you no longer have to load physical cds.

Simply click on the image of the cd beside the resource you want to view, then click on the title

Computer Password at the APFHC

APFHC computer password changes regularly: check the red folder in the drawer. Members need to get the cupboard key from library issues desk. We also request that you sign the blue sign-in book in the drawer - such statistics help us when applying for grants.

Printer, Paper and Toner

Please remember that you are asked to contribute 10c. per copy for the printing service provided. This amount does not even cover the cost of the toner used. Where possible you are encouraged to use memory sticks instead to record the results of your research.

Remember that if you cannot print, you can usually save your search results to a USB stick, supplies being available for purchase at a bargain price at the Wednesday morning sessions

Computers

We ask for your consideration on Wednesday mornings. If you are researching and do not need the help of the volunteers, please consider coming at another time than the 10 to 12 timeslot when use of the computers is at a premium.

Family History Month

A public research day is being held at the APFHC

Saturday August 15th - 11 am to 3 pm with experienced researchers on hand to help you find your ancestors.

Bring what you know and what you want to find out.

(see flyer on our webpages)

Resources to explore

Remember when we used to have to buy books, or CDs of gazetteers etc.?

Are you looking for somewhere your ancestors lived in the UK?

Try the Topographical dictionary section of British History Online (<http://www.british-history.ac.uk/search/series/topographical-dict>)

Those wonderful Dictionaries published by S Lewis, London, from 1846/1849, which came out on CD and still gather dust on my shelves, are readily available.

A Topographical Dictionary of Wales (<http://www.british-history.ac.uk/topographical-dict/wales>) originally published by S Lewis, London, 1849

(If your WILLIAMS and JONES families came from Eidda I'd love to hear from you, Lorna.)

The same site also has Lewis' Topographical Dictionary of Scotland, and of England, originally published 1846, but not his equivalent for Ireland.

For Scotland, I do still treasure my hardback copy of Groomes, although it is rather easier to access online in several versions. The one I prefer is via Scottish Places (<http://www.scottish-places.info/>) with its linked maps where you can switch between present day in the usual maps, terrain or the detailed ordnance survey versions, along with historical maps (see also the National Library of Scotland's excellent map collection (<http://maps.nls.uk/>))

It is also available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial Share alike 2.5 license from the InternetArchive in various formats to either read online or download (<https://archive.org/details/ordnancgazettee00groo>) and on ElectricScotland (<http://www.electricscotland.com/history/gazetteer/index.htm>)

Irish Genealogy has a commentary and links to useful resources for Irish placenames <http://www.irishgenealogy.com/ireland/gazetteers.htm>

Other useful sites from a multitude of options: Vision of Britain (<http://www.visionofbritain.org.uk/>)

GenUKI (<http://www.genuki.org.uk/>) also has extracts from assorted gazetteers, along with links to county and parish information.

The Gazetteer is very useful for standardising your place names in your genie program with an appropriate parish and county.

GeoGraph (<http://www.geograph.org.uk/>) which is aiming for photos for every grid square on the UK map.

FindmyPast

Over 94,000 records have been added to our collection of British Army, Northumberland Fusiliers 1881-1920 records <http://search.findmypast.com.au/search-world-Records/anglo-boer-war-records-1899-1902?ga=1.207594643.1420795317.1410962273>. The transcripts use information from over 70 sources including medal rolls, service records, medal index cards, battalion histories and St George's Gazette, and the regimental paper. They list details of men who served with the regiment during the Fourth Ashanti War (1895-1896), Sudan, Boer War, North West Frontier and the First World War. The Northumberland Fusiliers were formed in 1674 as the 5th Regiment of Foot. By the First World War the regiment was the second largest infantry regiment in the British Army. Query from our facebook page.

Hi I have a link to the Lynch family who lived in the area. I know very little about them apart from a ggg aunt married (Hurley) a Michael James Lynch and had a decent sized family (have names of most kids) and lived on a farm. Where is the best place to find info on them. Have mainly looked on paperspast and NZ BDM.
