Editorial

What have you found during lockdown? Great grandmother's wedding ring? A cousin in the outback? The story of the skeleton in the cupboard? A newspaper cutting from WWI trenches? Come and share anything interesting at our next meeting on July 28th's Show and Tell.

NB. We are back in the usual venue at the Kapiti Community Centre.

Hopefully those members wishing to attend the Daytime meeting realize it is on July 22nd this month, due to the venue being unavailable the following week.

The agenda for our AGM is on page 3. The branch depends on a viable Committee, so if you feel able to contribute in any capacity or wish to nominate another member, please contact the secretary, or fill in a nomination form available on www.kapitigen.org/2020/05/2020-agm-agendanomination-forms/

There was a good turnout at the first evening meeting back held at the Uniting Church. Many people seem to have taken advantage of lockdown to make progress with tidying papers and loose ends. Sadly I am not one of them. I had great intentions, but..... The good news is that winter evenings provide another opportunity.

Lorna's notes from the June On-line Trees session on page 4 encourage me to try out one of those Trees on offer. I must say it's all the entering of data that has put me off. But it would be very satisfying to be able to print out a whole section of the family tree, instead of trying to fit it onto an A4!

In the meantime, keep well and safe.

Sheila

PS. I did not know when I chose the graphic at the start of this editorial that Lost and Found was on again!

Next monthly meetings:
Wednesday afternoon
22nd July and
Tuesday evening
28th July

How do you pronounce 'Ye'? (Edited version)

Many of us have encountered the word "ye" in old documents, but how many know how to pronounce it?

For years, I pronounced it as it was written. "Yee Old", but later learned I was wrong. What looks like a "y" is a written character deriving from the old English letter, "thorn," representing the "th" sound. The thorn was commonly used in written English in the Middle Ages and for some time after, but has now almost disappeared.

While the Middle English thorn is now written the same as a modern letter y, it always was pronounced "th" as in "this." So several hundred years ago the word that was written as "ye" was pronounced "the".

An educated person of 1611 would always pronounce ^eŷ as "the" although today we might spell it as "thee" when referring to a person, as in "thee of little faith."

So, how do you pronounce the following?

Answer: "The Old Pizza Parlour"

June 'online trees' session notes

Our June session was on the FamilySearch tree <http://FamilySearch.org> a must use site for genealogy, free, also offering sources galore+++

Chances are your ancestors are already included and that you need not be put off by thinking "but I've x000 people to input if I start again on yet another tree".

You will have a gateway ancestor to link to, somewhere on your tree that makes life easier, and leaves the tree healthier, less duplicated and of course well sourced for the future generations.

eg using RootsMagic (RM), start with your closest ancestor no longer living, do the search from within RM on the FamilySearch tree, select a match if there is one.

Switch to the FamilySearch tree using the show in FamilyTree option, tidy up the FamilySearch tree by merging duplicates (after checking of course!) add sources, missing data.

Then go back into RM and match/import as you go back up your family of interest. You will be very unlucky if you have to do a lot of keying. We can cover this in more detail in the next RM session in July (see page 7)

Regardless of where you put your tree online, be mindful of basic input guidelines, which are covered well in this series of articles, of which the link is to the first

<https://www.dataminingdna.com/indepth-guide-to-ancestry-part-1-the-essential-tree/>

Do not be put off by the Ancestry / DNA focus, the input guidelines apply to ALL trees, including your genie program on your computer.

Anderson Park Re-interments

<http://memorials.friendswbg.org.nz/>

BROWSE this site, or search if you have a name.

I found this:

In Memory of - These 56 persons who died between October 1890 and September 1891 were originally buried in Reserve V of the Public Cemetery (towards Tinakori Road) and re-interred on this site in 1906 to make way for the formation of Anderson Park.

'Peace of the quiet earth to you' Plaque erected June 2001. Photo and List of names given.

Located on left side of the exit road leading to Kinross Street, on bank overlooking Anderson Park, close to the Seddon Memorial and the entrance to the Bolton Street Memorial Park.

No individual markers have been found for any of these interments comments:

The listed people were buried in Reserve V, which was where Anderson Park is now. It was designated as Cemetery Reserve but not opened up for burials until 1890-91 under protest from those who wanted a sports ground for Thorndon, rather than a graveyard. The protesters won in the end including Councillor Anderson, who got his way and had the park named after him. Karori Cemetery opened in 1891 and they forced burials to be undertaken there and allowed no new plots at Bolton Street, even though there was plenty of room in Reserve V.

In 1906 they exhumed the bodies and reburied them at the end of Kinross Street (which had not yet been constructed), the area just being a rough bit of scrub at the top end of the main cemetery.

It appears many of the 56 were derelicts or tiny babies. Several were from the Mount View Asylum (now Government House!). A few of the burials were people with families, and feature in the death notices of the day, but many were lonely inmates except for the small children.

A will on Familysearch

Deborah has also contributed this interesting snippet.

When looking at wills on familysearch.org I came across this gem.

Mr Betteridge of Yorkshire and NZ named his children: Thomas William Betteridge, Florence Ivy WARD, and Annie IRVINE

One of the clauses read:

"I bequeath my photograph of family group taken on my twenty-first wedding anniversary to my said son Thomas William Betteridge absolutely and my organ and radio to my said daughter Florence Ivy Ward absolutely."

Now we know some of what was important to him and to his children, and which line to follow to see the family photo.

DNA

Next meeting is on Saturday 8th August, 1.30-4pm. Waikane Baptist Church Café, 286, Te Moana Road, Waikanae. $3 to cover expenses.

Latest DNA news includes forthcoming changes at Ancestry.

The benefit is you will get more information about your match (longest shared segment) and hopefully fewer messages about performance issues when trying to view your results.

This change does however mean that your 1000s of small matches will be disappearing unless you take action now.

For the vast majority of testers this has little impact given the matches will usually be very very very distant connections, or even more likely, false positives. But there may well be some genealogically relevant hints in there, even if the actual DNA match presented may not be "real" or be proveable to be from the line suggested.

For those of you from endogamous populations, small segment matches may well be all you have.

Online Trees/software.

Next session Saturday 29th August, 1.45-3.45pm, Paraparaumu Library meeting room. $3 to cover expenses.

These sessions are designed to show you options for sharing your tree online eg. as cousin bait, and to aid your record searches.

Topic for the next session is WikiTree (<http://WikiTree.com>). For more information go to

Roots Magic

For those using Rootsmagic to record family history.

Next meeting will be Saturday 19th September, 2-4pm. Venue may change and time could be slightly earlier. For more information and any last minute changes, go to <http://www.kapitigen.org/programme/interest-groups/rootsmagic/>

Our July meeting explored the FamilySearch interface, and also reviewed the Program Options under the Tools menu, particularly the "Use CountyCheck when entering places".

Turning this latter OFF, ie unticking it, stops those annoying prompts about do you want to change eg England to England, United Kingdom.

But if you do turn this off, remember to check your Master Place list regularly to keep it tidy so that you get relevant prompts from your own entered places when entering data.
